Developing Our Character

Maturing In The Faith: Shelf 3 — Volume 25

Christianity is more than a set of rules by which we guard ourselves from following after our own morals and religious imaginations. It is a lifestyle. Jesus wanted us to have an abundant life in this world. In order to have this gift, we must bring into our behavior His principles of living. When we live as Jesus would have us live, then we will have a very fulfilling life. We will have better marriages and families. We will understand that there is a fullness of life that God intended that we have during our existence on this earth. It is for this reason that we must view the Bible as a textbook for the best life we can have. It is our spiritual guide for the development of our personal characters in order that we have the abundant life about which Jesus spoke and promised those who would follow Him.

Volume 25

We once offered this course to the government of Namibia to be taught in all the secondary schools of the nation. They accepted our offer. Course 25 is actually the first half of the textbook that we offered, but this material is on marriage and family. We are adding this course to the IBI Curriculum as a marital counseling course for those who are venturing into a contract of marriage. Download and share the course for those who seek help in marriage.
